

Front-End Foxes bootcamp was a before and after in my training as a professional in the IT area.

Thanks to my mentors and classmates who helped me boost my knowledge in the area and self-confidence. Now I am part of a great company where I can show my skills.

Who are we?

Founded in 2018 as Vue Vixens and rebranded in 2020 as Front-End Foxes, Inc., we are a 501(c)(3) public charity led by President and Founder Jen Looper alongside teams of volunteers.

We are primarily focused on our free women-only boot camp for new front-end technologists. These online boot camp cohorts of 20 students each are organized by region, with paid instructors aided by volunteer instructors. We also continued our chapter-led community outreach in 2021, although the pandemic made this difficult.

Our goal is still to boost the number of women-identifying people who attend and speak at technical conferences, help mid-career and senior women stay engaged by learning new technologies, and help new developers enter the workforce. Find us on Twitter and Slack and reach out for opportunities to contribute and collaborate!

How to get involved

If you identify as a woman, you are welcome to join in our boot camp as a student or an instructor. If you don't, you are still welcome to participate by mentoring during these events. We are pleased to accept tax-deductible contributions that help offset chapter expenses.

If you would like to sponsor us, there are several ways to do this. Sponsoring a cohort will help us to keep our boot camp going strong! To sponsor our global organization as a community member, you can support our GitHub Sponsorships.
